

The graduate could be employed especially in education, in civil service, nature, environmental and nature protection oriented NGOs, environmental stations, children and youths oriented clubs and all other positions where communication, educational and scientific skills are needed.

Graduate of our study program will have deep and up-to-date knowledge in biology, geology and environmental education, he/she will be familiar with working with biological and geological materials, he/she will know how to organize scientific excursions, meetings and expeditions, he/she will know how to work with basic laboratory machines, techniques and devices, and he/she will have basic orientation in scientific and popular-science literature.