

Graduate is equipped with the knowledge of informatics, of algorithms and programming, of architecture and functions of computer systems, of operating systems and their administration and of development of information systems and web technologies. Graduate is equipped with skills in the field of the installation, administration, prophylaxis and the development of computers and computer networks, the use of application software for processing data and information, in the field of the development of information systems and implementation of their database solution and web interface. Graduate is equipped with competencies supporting his vocational adaptability in a range of occupations and functions in educational institutions, firms and organizations in the provision of activities focused on the application of information technology.

Graduate of the bachelor program Information Technology Oriented at Education is equipped with the knowledge of informatics, of algorithms and programming, of architecture and functions of computer systems, of operating systems and their administration and of development of information systems and web technologies. Graduate is equipped with skills in the field of the installation, administration, prophylaxis and the development of computers and computer networks, the use of application software for processing data and information, in the field of the development of information systems and implementation of their database solution and web interface. Graduate is equipped with competencies supporting his vocational adaptability in a range of occupations and functions in educational institutions, firms and organizations in the provision of activities focused on the application of information technology. Graduate of the bachelor program Information Technology Oriented at Education may apply the acquired education including complex skills supporting the professional adaptability in a range of occupations and functions connected with providing technology oriented activities in educational institutions and facilities, in firms and institutions engaged in the field of information and communication technology, information processing or trade.